Explore the unique surroundings of the monument, which is still standing today as proof of the engineering and planning prowess of ancient Egypt. The Giza Plateau was not utilized as a royal cemetery location until the Fourth Dynasty, notably during the reign of King Khufu... Giza's history, however, truly begins far earlier—at least 400 years before the time of King Khufu, who constructed the Great Pyramid.

Why was the pyramid plateau chosen by the ancient Egyptians to see the building of one of the seven wonders of the world? The pyramid was not built in vain; rather, everything was meticulously planned and analyzed. And this question foreign researchers tried to answer, that the choice of the construction site carefully, as the area consists of a thick layer of limestone, so the Giza plateau can support the heavy weight of the pyramid, there are other pyramids built on sand, but they were destroyed over time, because the layer they were on did not bear the heavy weight, and researchers gave an example of Meidum, the smallest pyramid that was built.
