Safari Tour to Bahariya

Enjoy the White Desert Reserve, Egypt's first geopark, where the White Desert contains a group of sand dunes and valleys with vegetation that contains most of the wildlife living in the region, as well as prehistoric artefacts and tools, as well as the remains of rare tombs, caves, and ancient mummies.

Enjoy the calcifications of the White Desert, which was formed 80 million years ago, and its calcifications are of a unique type called karst, which is a very ancient geological phenomenon. Over time these calcifications have formed caves, which in turn have been transformed by erosion factors into high crystals of calcite ore in various shapes such as mushrooms and various other shapes. It has a special area called the mushroom area, which is very attractive to tourists.

Traveling the White Desert is similar to exploring an art museum's corridors. Every natural structure there is unique and interesting. Find out what desert life is like.

Day 01 : From Cairo to Bahariya Oasis / White Desert

You will be taken to the Bahariya Oasis, which has topped the Egyptian Bahariya Oasis as the most important therapeutic areas to which many patients resort, especially rheumatism and skin diseases, whether they are Egyptians, Arabs or foreigners due to the great fame that the Bahariya Oasis has gained in this field. You will be transported by a private air-conditioned car upon arrival. You will enjoy a Bedouin lunch after that you will be transferred to visit the Bahariya Oasis.

You'll visit Wadi Al Hayez and then see a mountain composed entirely of crystals, a rocky hill of limited height that runs alongside the motorway. These crystals of the mineral quartz are either crystals of the mineral calcite or barite.

After that, you will visit the Ajabat Valley, and then you will be transferred to the White Desert to camp and sleep under millions of stars. A fire will be lit to keep us warm throughout the night. There's something magical about exploring the White Desert at night. During this camping trip, you can climb low-rise rocks to get a better look at the area while you can stay put and enjoy the white-coloured stones that dot the landscape. Enjoy dinner in the evening.

Day 2: Back to Cairo

After enjoying breakfast, you will visit the Black Desert. The Western Desert region is characterised by natural treasures and countless riches in addition to the environmental features that are unique to this vast region in western Egypt, located on the geographical borders of the New Valley Governorate, specifically in the Farafra Centre, which is characterised by geological diversity created by the divine ability and produced creative artistic paintings, the most important of which are the Black Desert and White Desert reserves, each of which has its own unique beauty.

Among the most famous mountains in the Black Desert region is Al-Marsous Mountain, which is a crater consisting of sandstone rocks covered with basalt cliffs that appear in the form of stacked columns, so the people of the Bahariya Oasis called it Al-Marsous Mountain and its area is estimated at about 2 km², Panorama Mountain, where visitors to the Black Desert used to climb to take panoramic pictures of the Black Desert from the highest point, and English Mountain, located in the area between Mendisha village and Al-Bawiti town, which is located in the area separating the village of Mendisha and the city of Al-Bawiti.

Then we will start our almost 4-hour drive back to your Cairo hotel.
