Throughout its long history, Memphis has been a city of great importance and encouragement. It was considered the largest human tax in the world, with a population of about three thousand people at that time.

Therefore, it would be a deserted city, uninhabited. Enjoy a trip from Sharm El Sheikh to this city

A day trip to Dahshur Farms from Sharm. For a rustic day, we will see the harvesting of dates from the palm, how the calves work and press, bake bread, eat rustic food, and make handicrafts with the people of the Dahshur area. Enjoy a great day in the middle of nature.

Egypt is ranked first in the world in palm production, and the people of Dahshur village are trained to pack, package, and sell it for tourism. The Dahshur archaeological area contains three pyramids dating back to the reign of the kings (Amenhotep II and III, and Senusret III).. Their importance stems from the fact that they reflect the architectural development that pyramid construction underwent in ancient Egypt.

By upholding traditions and rituals, Dahshur protects the nation's cultural legacy and identity. It also offers agricultural activities, crafts, and handicrafts, and a variety of economic activities, making it a popular tourist destination... for this reason, we offer a trip to the Dahshur area to explore its monuments and nature.

Tour to Memphis and Dahshor from Sharm

Our representatives will meet and welcome you, then we will start moving to Sharm el-Sheik Airport and board your flight. Upon arrival, another representative will be waiting to assist you in starting our tours to Memphis and Dahshur.

First, we'll start visiting Memphis. Memphis is the most noteworthy area in the Middle Kingdom that sits between Upper and Lower Egypt, earning the nickname "Balance of the Two Lands." It is suggested that it was the most populated city on Earth until 2250 BC.

In 2240, Luxor, now known as Thebes, replaced Egypt as its capital. Alexandria was established in 331 BC after decades had passed, but its importance waned until it was abandoned in 641. Cairo was constructed from its remnants..

It was considered the largest human tax in the world, with a population of about three thousand people at that time. Therefore, it would be a deserted city, uninhabited. Enjoy a trip from Sharm el-Sheik to this city.

In addition to learning about customs and traditions and visiting the Egyptian landscape, continue your journey to the Dahshur region, which is rich in history and artifacts. This will be an excellent chance to learn about Sneferu, one of the Egyptian pharaoh who used six million stones to construct four pyramids. He began with the first pyramid in Beni Suef's Meidum neighborhood, followed by two more in the Dahshur neighborhood: the "Bent Pyramid" and "The Red Pyramid," the first complete pyramid—that is, one that is neither stepped nor broken. He subsequently constructed the Celle, the fourth pyramid. Six million stones were employed in the construction of these four pyramids.
